Peru mission team encounters series of divine appointments

BY GARY D. MYERS

A small mission team from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary left for Peru July 2 with great expectations. They expected to see God work in a mighty way. They were not disappointed.

What the team didn't anticipate was way God would work during their trip. The team faced several "set backs" that turned into divine appointments long before they even reached Peru and well after they expected to be home. The lesson learned: mission trips begin when you walk out your front door, not when you reach your destination. READ ARTICLE

Student News: Jeremy Wilkerson records praise/worship album

BY PAUL F. SOUTH

"There's no doubt our God is a God of purpose," Jeremy Wilkerson, a student at Leavell College of New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary said.

For Wilkerson, who grew up in a musical family, the latest product of that purpose is Wilkerson's first album, "God of Creation." A self-described "acoustically-driven praise and worship" project, the album is making the rounds in online music sites and stores. READ ARTICLE
